Klorman Construction Completes Construction of Animation Studio Store at Universal City

WOODLAND HILLS, CA. – March 18, 2018

Klorman Construction recently completed the concrete work of a two-story Animation Studio Store at Universal Studios Hollywood.

Located at 4465 Tony Curtis Drive, the project entailed completing the bottom floor animation store and a second floor consisting of locker rooms and offices.

“This was a very challenging project simply because we had to work at a very business entertainment location without disrupting its daily business operations,” said Bill Klorman, president of Klorman Construction. “That included scheduling major concrete pours at night, when we had to drive pumps and concrete trucks through the park while making sure there was no damage caused and completing it in time for the next morning’s park opening.

“This is another example of Klorman Construction’s ability to be sensitive to our clients’ needs and our willingness and creativity in overseeing projects in a manner that minimizes the disruption and negative impact on our clients’ ongoing operations.”

Swinerton Builders was the general contractor on the project. Behr Bowers Architects Inc. oversaw design of the store.
